

Peripherals add some external functions to digital systems.

The external function can be

- ❖ an interactive process with the environment,
- ❖ performing computational or logical algorithms
- ❖ or communication with other systems.

Usually, the interaction with a peripheral requires simple or complex data exchange and synchronisation mechanisms.