

A length-limit sequence of numbers is called pseudo-random if it shows no pattern, which is almost random. A completely deterministic and repeatable process generates the numbers. It is one way to generate random numbers in a computer program or hardware.